

Velvet Fog

A special blend of 50% wheat malt and 50% barley gives this beer its hazy, golden colour and fresh, tangy taste. At 4.5% alc./vol. the choice is clear. The beer isn't.

WRed Wheat

Stephen Beaumont, Canada's premier beer writer, describes this beer as an "off dry quaffer that offers a tasteful blend of caramelly sweetness and woody dryness." We think he described it perfectly. Enjoy!

SOB (Special Old Bitter)

Golden in color, this SOB is brewed with imported hops to achieve the flavour profile of this classic English Ale. Light in body, and brewed to 4.0% alc./vol., this is definitely a session beer for one & all.

WRaspberry Ale

You will not find any preservatives in this thirst quenching ale. But additives? That's a different story as each brew of Wild Rose WRaspberry Ale is infused with thousands of natural, juicy-red additives called raspberries.

Brown Ale

Dark brown and ruby hued, this ale exhibits rich notes of espresso and chocolate. Very approachable, Wild Rose Brown Ale is mildly hopped with a medium body and a clean finish.

IPA (India Pale Ale)

Wild Rose IPA is a beautiful copper-coloured ale, rich in caramel malt character and well balanced with plenty of hops. An authentic India Pale Ale, this IPA is handcrafted for the true ale drinker.

Oatmeal Stout (Alberta Crude)

Black as its namesake with a creamy tan head, this Oatmeal Stout is velvety smooth with low carbonation. Six different malts, hops from the U.K., and (of course) oatmeal contributes to this ale's complex character.
